A family of fine wines

The Lurton wine group comprises all members of the extensive Lurton family working in the wine industry, of which there are currently thirteen. Vinexpo 2009 saw the clan become a single marketing entity, presented in detail online at: www.lurton.com

LURTON

A Family
of FINE WINES

One of the oldest and greatest dynasties operating in the world's most famous winegrowing region, Bordeaux, the Lurtons have also branched out internationally, with the forays of various family members into other regions throughout Europe and the southern hemisphere.

The Lurton flag flies over more than 30 vineyards worldwide, accounting for 1,300 hectares of viticultural land.

You won't find a group like ours anywhere else. We're the only family in the world to have so many of its members all working in the wine industry.

While each has their own individual business, synergies between these different branches of the family tree naturally occur from time to time.

We appreciate that the Lurton family name is now a recognisable brand. That's why we're so keen to promote and cherish it, even if alongside this each individual family member is nurturing and developing their own message under their own first name.

By working together like this, we like to think we're giving those within our industry (buyers, the press, opinion leaders, etc.) a clearer insight into our individual differences in terms of who we are and what we do.

Our family's involvement in such a high calibre range of business activities makes us extremely proud of what we produce. We're delighted to be able to share our passion for wine with you, so relax and browse away!
